Citadel Group appointed as new supplier as part of the Federal Government's Digital Transformation Agency's Software Licensing and Services Panel

Canberra, Australia – 21 March 2019 – ASX-listed Citadel Group (ASX: CGL) has been appointed as a new supplier as part of the Federal Government's Digital Transformation Agency's Software Licensing and Services Panel for a new category Commercial of the Shelf (COTS) Software and Services.

The new COTS software category is intended to replace most of the software procurement which was previously arranged through a Department of Finance panel. It includes products such as analytics, project management and workflow tools, data migration, software integration and system testing software.

All of Citadel's secure information management products and eHealth software solutions can be purchased through the panel including Citadel-IX, vResponder, Kapish Productivity Suite, S2IX, Micro Focus Content Manager, Evolution, CHARM and Anaesthetic Private Practice (APP).

This panel provides Government agencies across Australia with a commercial mechanism to procure all of Citadel's software products and services. Citadel's competitive pricing will also be published as part of this panel arrangement.
